

31st Annual

Land Use Institute: Planning, Regulation, Litigation, Eminent Domain, and Compensation

Thursday, July 30, 2015

Westin Chicago River North, Chicago, Illinois

Local government land use decisions affect economic development and quality of life. They can also create major challenges to efforts by property owners to develop and use their property, as well as to residents as they cope with growth and change.

This program is designed for attorneys, professional planners, and government officials involved in land use planning, zoning, permitting, property development, conservation and environmental protection, and related litigation. It not only addresses and analyzes the state-of-the-art efforts by government to manage land use and development, but also presents the key issues faced by property owners and developers in obtaining necessary governmental approvals. In addition, the entire approach of the program is to provide practice pointers that give immediate "take home value."

Why Attend

This outstanding program features:

- preeminent faculty of practitioners and academics who provide nationwide perspective without losing sight of state specific issues;
- critical review and analysis of the most important new cases;
- practice-oriented discussion of basics and “hot” topics;
- guidance on routine and complex procedural issues; and
- outstanding networking opportunities, including continental breakfast, breaks, and a reception for registrants and faculty.

This course is an investment in your practice, in your career, in your ability to get out ahead of the competition in serving your clients, and in the appreciation and intellectual satisfaction you can get only from having knowledge of land use at the cutting edge.

What You Will Learn

This annual course of study, comprising 6.5 hours of instruction, with an additional option of 3.5 hrs on the following day (additional registration fees), is designed to provide an effective and efficient review of current issues in land use for attorneys, planners, public officials, developers, and academics. Now in its 31st year, the Land Use Institute has earned its role as one of the most comprehensive land use continuing education program available.

The Institute is now being sponsored by the ABA's Section of State & Local Government Law, in addition to the original sponsor, American Law Institute Continuing Legal Education (ALI CLE).

Special features of this year's Institute include:

Course Materials

Each panel has a faculty coordinator and materials are discussed among the panelists for each session before being prepared. This effort annually produces materials that assist registrants in following the lectures, and provides a valuable resource that many use as an annual update on current land use issues.

Update on Planning, Land Use, and Eminent Domain Decisions

The year's course begins with a morning panel discussion of recent court decisions, providing a common foundation for all registrants to build a better understanding of the current state of land use law.

Subject areas where cases will be addressed (subject to change) include: Affordable Housing; Agricultural Land; Climate Change; Comprehensive Planning; Development Agreements; Eminent Domain; Exactions; First Amendment; Historic Preservation; Impact Fees; Medical Marijuana; Moratoria; Non-Conforming Uses; Takings; Variances; Vested Rights and Wetlands.

Federal Laws, Regulations, and Programs Affecting Local Land Use Decision-Making

The federal government continues to encroach on local government decision-making through a variety of policies and programs. This second morning session presents major current issues as they relate to environmental protection and real estate development at the local level. Among the topics to be discussed in detail (subject to change) are: Climate Change; Drones; Endangered Species; Energy; Hazardous Materials; Historic Preservation; Hydraulic Fracturing; NEPA; Religious Land Use; Water and Wetlands.

Hot Topic Sessions

In response to registrants' requests for the opportunity to examine current issues in greater detail, two sets of afternoon concurrent sessions provide a detailed analysis covering both "hot" topics and traditional critical practice areas. Faculty members summarize their prepared materials, overview key aspects of the topic, and provide ample time for participants' questions.

Topics this year (subject to change) include:

Urban Agriculture

Regulating Navigable Airspace: The Drones are Here

The Laws of Transportation Sharing

Hydraulic Fracturing

Ethical Considerations for the Land Use Practitioner and Government Lawyer

The Laws of Sharing Residential Properties

Annual Richard F. Babcock Faculty Keynote Address

Richard F. Babcock was one of the twentieth century's greatest land use attorneys and the first chair of the predecessor to the Land Use Institute. In his honor, each year a selected faculty member presents a major address on a topic of substantial current interest.

Faculty member Deborah Rosenthal has been selected to present this year's address. Ms. Rosenthal is a news reporter turned planner turned land use lawyer. Her topic, "From the Ground Up: Unshared Assumptions in Law and Planning," will discuss how lawyers and planners can use the same words and mean something totally different. Through numerous examples, she will illustrate the frustration of land use professionals, and make suggestions about how to address the confusion.

Other Benefits of Attending

Time is set aside throughout the program for faculty interaction and to address written questions submitted by the registrants, both in advance of and during the program. Continuing the tradition of expanded networking opportunities, there will be a continental breakfast and morning and afternoon breaks, and a reception for registrants and faculty following the program.

The distinguished panel of diverse national faculty includes:

Planning Chair (also on faculty): Frank Schnidman, Professor and Executive Director, Center for Urban and Environmental Solutions (CUES), Florida Atlantic University, School of Urban and Regional Planning, Boca Raton, FL
